STEP TO IMPEACH JUDGE JENKINS.

LABOR LEADERS PREPARE A PETITION TO CONGRESS.

His Strike Order the Cause—Investigation of the Action in the Northern Pacific Case to be Asked—Impeachment Proceedings May Then Follow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—Steps to have Judge James G. Jenkins impeached by the house of representatives will be taken by the Knights of Labor. They object to his action in granting an injunction to restrain the employes of the Northern Pacific from joining in a strike. Mr Cleveland's judicial appointees seem to have no end of trouble. In the ordinary course of events the senate judiciary committee, to which the nomination of Wheeler H. Peckham as associate justice of the supreme court was referred the day before yesterday, will not meet till Monday next to consider its action in that matter. Monday is their regular meeting day, and it is not likely that in this early stage of the proceedings a special meeting will be called to consider the case. Several special meetings were held on the Hornblower case, but that was after the matter had been considered and laid over at a number of regular meetings. All the members of the judiciary committee are in the city, with the possible exception of Senator Lindsay of Kentucky, and the indications seem to be that no dilatory measures will be resorted to in this case, but that there will be prompt and unfavorable action on the nomination. Friends of Senator Hill say that he has departed from his usual reticence and has openly stated that Mr. Peckham's nomination will be defeated by a more decisive vote than Mr. Hornblower's.

FIXING THE TAX ON IRON ORE.

House Continues Its Discussion of the Wilson Bill in Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Very promptly after the meeting of the house yesterday and with the intervention of very little routine business the house went into committee of the whole to consider the Wilson bill, and Mr. Taylor (rep.) of Tennessee, offered an amendment substituting the provisions of the McKinley law for the proposed iron ore schedule in the Wilson bill.

Mr. White (rep.) of Ohio spoke in opposition to the Wilson bill and presented a protest from a shipmasters' union of Cleveland, Ohio, against the iron ore schedule. He also presented a protest of the same tenor from the vessel owners of Cleveland.

Mr. Denson (dem.) of Alabama pleaded for protection on iron ore. He held that iron ore was not a raw material, for the reason that there was a large expenditure of capital in machinery for raising ore and for similar purposes. He was followed by Mr. Tawney (rep.) of Minnesota.

The Taylor substitute was defeated by a vote of 65 in the affirmative to 136 in the negative, but one democrat, Mr. Swanson of Virginia, voting with the republicans.

An amendment to make the duty on iron ore, including manganiferous iron ore, also the gross or residium from burny pyrites, 40 cents per ton (42.7 per cent) and sulphur ore, as pyrites or sulphuret of iron in its natural state, 40 cents per ton, was defeated by a vote of 52 to 109. Among those democrats who voted for the amendment were Messrs Beltzhoover, Wheeler, Stallings, Oates and Robertson. All the populists voted against it.

The iron schedule being thus disposed of, Mr. Robbins (dem., Ala.) submitted an amendment to the paragraph which puts agricultural implements on the free list. The amendment adds to these articles enumerated, "all articles for use in the manufacture of cotton, including machinery and equipment."

Mr. Wilson (dem., W. Va.) made the point of order that the substitute proposed was not germane, but the chairman overruled the point of order.

Mr. Terry (dem., Ark.) offered an amendment to Mr. Robbins' amendment, admitting free of duty, besides finished machinery, "parts thereof and agricultural implements of all kinds."

Mr. Draper (rep., Mass.) spoke as an expert in the business under discussion, as he is a manufacturer of cotton machinery. He said there was no argument of either free traders or protectionists which justified the putting of a highly finished product on the free list, while leaving all its component parts on the dutiable list.

Mr. Hopkins (rep., Ill.) opposed the amendment as well as the main provisions of the bill.

Mr. Hare (dem., Ohio) offered as an amendment to the substitute of Mr. Payne a proposal to put plows, tools, and disc-harrows, harvesters, reapers, agricultural drills, and planters, mowers, horse rakes, cultivators, thrashing machines and cotton gins on the dutiable list, with a tariff of 35 per cent ad valorem, with a proviso that they should be admitted free from those countries which impose no duty on similar articles from the United States.

Mr. Lacey (rep., Iowa) opposed the amendment putting cotton machinery on the free list.

Mr. Sickles (dem., N. Y.) in speaking to the pending amendments said he thought that while free admission of articles should be the rule and not the exception, still the pending bill did not raise sufficient revenue for the government. He denounced the proposed income tax as un-democratic and un-American, and predicted that it would bring disaster on the American people and consign the democratic party to oblivion.

A short and sharp filibuster was caused by Mr. McMillin (dem., Tenn.) reporting the internal revenue bill containing the income tax clause. A motion to adjourn was overwhelmingly defeated by a viva voce vote and a division demanded. Again the proposition was defeated by a vote of yeas, 14; nays, 80.

A demand was then made that the vote be taken by yeas and nays, but this motion was also defeated—yeas, 15; nays, 98—so the house refused to adjourn. The internal revenue bill was then reported and the speaker announced a recess in spite of the remonstrance of the New York delegation. The announcement was greeted with loud cheers.

The speakers at the night session were Messrs Ryan (N. Y.), Swanson (Va.), Baldwin (Minn.), Ikirt (Ohio), Cummings (N. Y.)—all democrats—and Baker (pop., Kan.) in favor of the bill; and Messrs Wagner (Pa.), Johnson (N. D.), Moon (Mich.), Kiefer (Minn.), and Blair (N. H.)—all republicans—in opposition to it. There were few other members present, but there was a large audience in the public galleries.

AMENDING THE WILSON BILL.

Important Changes Are Decreed by the Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A number of important amendments were adopted by the ways and means committee yesterday to the customs and internal revenue sections of the tariff bill. The tax on cigarettes, which had been placed at $1.60 a thousand, was reduced to $1. It is now 50 cents.

An enlargement of the paragraph relating to binding twine was made so as to permit importations of New Zealand hemp to come in free.

The reciprocity provision of the McKinley bill is stricken out of the bill, but the committee decided to make their action clearer by inserting a special provision in the bill specifically repealing Sec. 3 of the present law.

Some unimportant changes were made in the income tax provisions of the bill, and where reference is made in Sec. 2 to the taxation of incomes derived from the sale of live stock and farm products an amendment is made exempting from the operation of the tax any part thereof consumed directly by the family.

Senators Debate Hawaii Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The resolution reported Tuesday from the committee on foreign relations against the consideration at present of any project of annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States was laid before the senate yesterday, and Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.) offered the following substitute for it:

"Resolved, That it is unwise and inexpedient to consider the project of annexing the Hawaiian territory to the United States; that the people of the Hawaiian islands should be left to choose and maintain their own government; and that any foreign intervention in the political affairs of the islands will be regarded as an act unfriendly to the government of the United States."

Mr. Gray (dem., Del.) said he did not see that the substitute differed at all from the committee resolution.

Mr. Sherman (rep., Ohio) said that he had accepted with great pleasure the propositions presented in Mr. Turpie's resolution. He was in favor of annexation on certain conditions. If the islands were to be annexed he would favor attaching them to the state of California. He did not think, however, this was the time to take that step.

Mr, Allison (rep., Iowa) said if the resolution committed the senate in any way to the policy declared by the President he would not vote for it.

Here the resolution and several modifications of it, offered by way of amendment, went over till to-day.

National Election Laws.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—When the federal election bill was taken up yesterday in the senate Mr. Lodge (rep., Mass.) addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. After his speech the senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. When the doors were reopened the following bills were taken from the calendar and passed:

House bill to authorize the secretary of the interior to reserve from sale certain lands in the abandoned Fort Cummings military reservation.

Senate bill authorizing the issue of a patent to the Presbyterian Board of Home missions for certain lands on the Omaha Indian reservation.

The senate adjourned until to-day.

Internal Revenue Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The full ways and means committee has voted to report the internal revenue bill, including the income tax. The vote was 9 to 5. Messrs Cockran and Stevens, democrats, voted against the measure. Mr. McMillin (dem.) of Tennessee is preparing the majority report. Mr. Cockran will prepare a minority report.

Pension for a Centenarian.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — Andrew Franklin, a veteran of the war of 1812, who lives in Coffey county, Kansas, and is 102 years old, will be given a pension of $50 a month if the favorable report of house pensions committee on his case is approved by congress.

JUST THREE ROUNDS ENDED MITCHELL.

CORBETT WINS THE BATTLE IN SHORT ORDER.

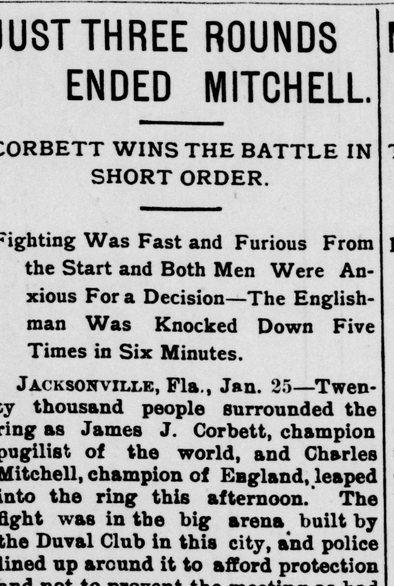

Fighting Was Fast and Furious From the Start and Both Men Were Anxious For a Decision—The Englishman Was Knocked Down Five Times in Six Minutes.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 25—Twenty thousand people surrounded the ring as James J. Corbett, champion pugilist of the world, and Charles Mitchell, champion of England, leaped into the ring this afternoon. The fight was in the big arena built by the Duval Club in this city, and police lined up around it to afford protection and not to provent the meeting as had been feared.

Corbett's second protested because the posts of the ring were not padded, and delay was necessary until carpenters could be put at work.

All morning it rained but just before the fight began it cleared up. The crowd was dense but orderly.

Mitchell stepped into the ring weighing 174 pounds and Corbett weighing eleven rounds more.

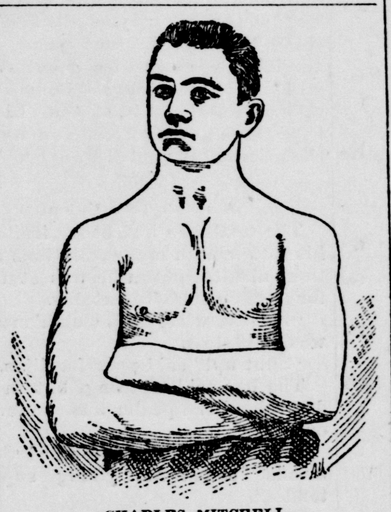

JAMES J. CORBETT.

It took just three rounds to finish the fight. The story of the battle follows:

Round 1—Fighting was hard from the drop of the hat. Hard blows were exchanged and both seemed anxious to fight. The round ended with honors even.

Round 2—Corbett knocked Mitchell down twice and the round ended with Mitchell perceptibly groggy. Mitchell was manifestly Corbett's inferior by far in the matter of skill. Corbett's feints deceived him completely.

Round 3—Corbett knocked Mitchell down with a blow on the ear almost as soon as the round opened. A blow on Mitchell's mouth scored a second knock down, and as the Englishman rose to his feet weak and dizzy a swinging blow on his nose ended the battle.

CHARLES MITCHELL.

Judge Call at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon made permanent the temporary injunction restraining Sheriff Broward from taking possession of the arena and ordered him not to interfere with the Corbett-Mitchell contest provided it is carried on in conformity with the articles of agreement.

The club will get even. It sold $10,000 worth of seats yesterday and this amount will be increased by $10,000 more to-day. The club's receipts will be about $30,000. This will just let it out even.

Big Distillery Likely to Be Built.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 25.—John Beggs, vice-president of the whisky trust, is here from Peoria to investigate the project for an anti-trust distillery which George Woolsey is promoting, and in which local capitalists are interested. Local aid in a financial way for the purchase of a site is being solicited, and those engaged in this effort say there is no doubt a distillery will be built having a capacity of 5,000 bushels of grain a day.

Heavily Reduced Rates to Chicago.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 25.—The Santa Fe railway freight department has announced that Jan. 29 it would make a flat rate from Missouri points to Chicago of 10 cents a hundred on wheat and 8 cents on corn. The rates have been 24 and 20 cents respectively.

MURDERER HART IS NOW ON TRIAL.

TESTIMONY OF THE STATE CONCERNS HIS SANITY.

Mother of the Defendant and His Victims Takes the Stand to Testify Against Her Son But Does So Unwillingly—Thought Him Unsound.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 25.—The last of the twelve jurors in the Hart murder case was chosen yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the trial was begun in earnest. After the last four jurors were accepted on both sides Judge Shaw excused the first juror accepted, W. A. Daniels, who was accused of saying that he had got on the jury for the express purpose of hanging Hart. Lucien Williams, a retired farmer, was accepted in his place.

State's Attorney Frost made his statement to the jury, reviewed the crime at length, told of the manner in which the girls met their death, and described the Hart premises where the homicide occurred. The attorney declared that Hart's actions showed him to be sane. His answers to the officers when arrested showed that he was laboring under no insanity delusion. Mr. Garver then spoke briefly upon the defense of insanity.

Mrs. Bridget Hart, the mother of the prisoner and his victims, was the first witness for the prosecution. She was evidently an "unwilling witness." After the prosecution had finished its examination the witness volunteered the opinion that "John had not been right since he returned from the west," which testimony being thrown out she retired. William Hart, brother of the accused, told the story of finding Nellie and her condition.

TO CLEAR O'SULLIVAN.

New Witness Put on the Stand by the Defense.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Yesterday's session of court in the Coughlin trial opened with the resumption of the cross-examination of Prof. Ewell, the medical expert, by Mr. Bottum. The evidence amounted to nothing. There being no more medical witnesses present, the defense began its refutation of the evidence against Patrick O'Sullivan by calling to the stand James Minehan, who in May 1889 worked for Patrick O'Sullivan. Replying to Mr. Donahoe Minehan testified that on May 4 he was driving an ice wagon for O'Sullivan. Witness boarded in O'Sullivan's home. He said he was with O'Sullivan the entire evening and they were never near the Carlson cottage. Cross-examination by the lawyer for the prosecution succeeded in mixing him up somewhat, but his evidence remained practically the same.

MAY CLOSE DOWN.

Canvass of the Vote Is for Maintaining Present Prices.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 25.—The coal operators of Ohio will hold a meeting within a few days to decide whether they shall close down all the mines indefinitely on account of dullness of trade and the refusal of the miners to accept a lower scale. They say the miners must work for 50 cents a ton or they will not get work at any price. The vote of the miners was canvassed yesterday. The total was 8,875, of which 4,951 favored present prices and 3,944 to maintain the differential between Ohio and the Pittsburg district.

BUILD WAR RHIPS ON NEW PLANR

The English Authorities Devising Various Schemes to Spend $35,000,000.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The admiralty authorities have completed the new ship-building plan calling for the expenditure of $35,000,000 and have placed orders for new fifty-ton guns to supersede the sixty-seven ton breech-loaders which are the principal armament of the existing battle-ship.

The new scheme of armament is based upon the principle that the next naval war will be a test of maneuvering skill and that coal endurance will play a prominent part in such tactics. As a result the new ironclads will be superior to any of the existing ships in regard to coal capacity, thus rendering them independent of coaling stations at a critical moment.

NOT A SURPRISE AT ALL.

Caprivi Knew of William's Intentions Toward Bismarck.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—It appears that Chancellor von Caprivi and Baron Marschall von Beiberstein had previously been informed of Emperor William's intention to send Col. Count von Moltke, his aid-de-camp, to Prince Bismarck with a conciliatory letter and a bottle of rare old wine, and so bring about the reconciliation which followed the visit of Col. Count von Moltke to Friedrichsruhe.

At the castle preparations are being made to receive Prince Bismarck, who will be the guest of Emperor William during his stay in Berlin. It is understood the prince will cordially support the government, but anything like direct participation in government affairs is far from contemplation by any of the parties concerned.

It was then too late to save the insane people and the main building was saved only by the greatest efforts. The steward says he banked the fire in the furnace about 9 o'clock and does not know how the fire originated unless from a defective flue.

The resolution goes on to say:

"We believe an issue of legal tender treasury notes, will relieve the present distressed condition of the labor market and money market far more than an issue of gold bonds, and consider it an insult to a long suffering people, to issue bonds with so much bullion lying in the United States treasury vault."

FIVE YEAR SENTENCE.

Impressive Close of the Trial of Banker Koetting at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 25.—Banker Koetting, convicted of wrecking the South Side Savings bank, was last night sentenced to five years in state prison. In order that he may arrange some business affairs the prisoner will not be taken to the state prison before Wednesday next. Mr. Williams' motion for a new trial was the usual formal motion to the effect that the verdict was contrary to the evidence; that the jury was prejudiced; that the court erred in accepting and excusing jurors, and also erred in instructing the jury.

The court at once denied the motion for a new trial. Mr. Williams then announced that the defendant asked for an arrest of judgment for the reasons that the court had no jurisdiction in the case. Both motions were overruled. Mr. Williams then made an appeal for mercy in behalf of his client. At the conclusion of Mr. Williams' address Judge Clementson asked Koeting to rise, and said: "The sentence of the court is that you be sentenced to state's prison for a term of five years, the first day to be spent in solitary confinement."

If Koeting is not granted a new trial he will be obliged to serve only three years and nine months' imprisonment, as he is entitled under a five years' sentence to fifteen months' good time.

JERE MURPHY'S IDEA IS THAT--

Too many people who oppose the mixing of religion with politics are in favor of mixing politics with religion.

It is an awful thing to learn that the enforced thirst of many excellent people in Iowa for several years has been unconstitutional.

Likely enough that World's fair medal design had to be changed because Chairman Wall didn't want anything on the medals which might shock the modesty of the Milwaukee brewers.

We betray no confidence in saying that the professed anxiety of several pap-fed democratic organs, caused by a pretended fear that the plaintiffs in the roster jobbery case do not want a trial, is not shared by any of the defendants.

The apparent desire of a few democratic contemporaries to have the roster case go to the jury with only Senator Vilas in evidence is natural enough, but it will scarcely be gratified. Gov. Peck, Partner Bashford, Conscientious Clark, the gallant Gen. Doe and the elusive Attorney General O'Connor will all be afforded opportunity to vindicate the reform democracy as witnesses for the prosecution beyond a doubt —Madison Journal.

A Successful Physician.

It is almost useless to attempt to say anything more in praise of Dr. H. A. McChesney, the noted eye, ear, nose and throat specialist in the Wilcox block. But then, after taking second thought, it seems almost impossible to publish an issue of The Gazette without noticing him. Too much cannot be said in favor of his good work. On every hand people are sounding his praise. The hundred and fifty patients he has in his charge are continually telling their friends the good he has done for them. The writer has met several of the doctor's patients, and it is very interesting to hear them tell how he has treated them, taking their case when it seemed almost hopeless, and bringing about results that seemed almost miraculous. The doctor deserves great praise and the citizens of Janesville should feel highly honored at his presence here, as he has done more to alleviate suffering humanity than all the physicians in the city. He never accepts a case that he cannot benefit.

DEMOCRATS SICK AT HEART OVER THE PROSPECT.

The A. P. A. Suggested By One Old Veteran as a Convenient Screen to Cut Off Talk About Empty Dinner Pails and Idle Factories.

The esteemed and ancient Prairie du Chien Courier (which is also post master) proposes to have the next campaign in Wisconsin made on the A. P. A. issue, and declares that the state can be carried by 40,000 majority, "with Senator Vilas to lead the friends of civil and religious freedom." That scheme will never produce any dividends. No doubt the democrats, disheartened at the cowardice and incompetency of their party in congress, shamed and humiliated at the ridiculous diplomatic antics of the administration, sickened at the rotten roster revelations, and disgusted with the record of broken promises of economy in the state, would like to force some absurd issue into the campaign in the hope of obscuring the facts that so completely establish their unworthiness and guilt.

It won't work this year. It is not a promising time to engineer a political ambuscade. The people are going into the next campaign with their eyes wide open They see where they have been deceived heretofore. They are in no mood to be fooled by any side issues. They are thoroughly out of patience with the bickering and paltering over vital questions, by the divided democracy in Washington, and the false pretenses and corrupt trafficking of sham reformers in Wisconsin

There will be a fair, stand-up fight in this state next fall. There will be no mistaking the issues. The republican party will pronounce for such protection to home industries and interests as has given us prosperity for so many years, never interrupted until the threat of the removal of protection brought alarm, stagnation and distress into almost every community. Republicans will expose the false claims of economy and the corrupt practices of the present state administration. an administration pitied for its weakness and abhorred for its wickedness.

These will be the issues on which the next campaign in Wisconsin will be conducted. The democrats may as well prepare to face them. No artful dodging will succeed in evading, and no hypocritical cant about religious freedom, is obscuring. The people are tired of humbug and pretense and palaver. They want adopted a policy that shall revive business, restore confidence, relieve idleness and want. They are looking for business. They are going to the polls next fall to vote for better times, for higher wages, for bread and butter. They have fed a year on talk. They are not satisfied with that sort of diet —Madison Journal.

White Granite Ware.

Look through this issue until you find Wheelock's large advertisement. Read it carefully; you will find something there to interest you. Their special sale on white granite ware will last but ten days. Be sure and take advantage of it, as you will never have those goods offered you again at the prices now quoted by Wheelock.

A Fresh Translation.

The small boy had been irritating his father with many vexations questions about a psalm he was studying for Sunday school next day.

"Father, what does 'Selah' mean?" was the latest.

"Shut up!" said paterfamilias.

The boy said nothing, but in Sunday school the psalm was under discussion.

"Who knows what the word 'Selah' means?" asked the young superintendent.

The small boy's hands went up, and he was half way out of his seat.

No one else raised a hand.

"Well?" said the superintendent.

"Shut up!" said the small boy. And seeing the look on the teacher's face added, "it is! I asked papa, and he said 'shut up!'"—Toledo Blade.

Late Arrivals.

Many new goods arrived at Wheelock's too late to open for the holiday trade. Whole packages of French China from Haviland's factory, of Wheelock's own importation, are just in. Call and look them over. The prices will be right. Also, new cut glasses, silverware, and new fancy pieces. Try MacBeth's lead glass chimneys.

MAGAZINES FOR THE MONTH.

Godey's In New Dress.

The February number of Godey's Magazine appears in a new and most attractive cover, and with many innovations and improvements in the inside of the magazine. In every respect this number is the most attractive ever issued by the Godey Publishing Company. It has choice and varied contents, the opening article, "How to Make Money in Wall Street," being from the pen of Henry Clews. There are the opening chapters of a novel, "This Man and This Woman," by Margaret Lee, with illustrations by Paul Mimmo Moran; a short story, "The World's Gain," by Henry Milford Steele; "Superstitions of the English Miner," by S. P. Cadman; "Feroline," short story by Lucy C. Lillie and other interesting features,

Worthingtons for February

The February number of Worthington's Magazine is one of the best ever published, bright, fresh and full of interesting articles, with fine press work and artistic illustrations that add greatly to the attractiveness of its pages. The leading article is entitled "Peasant Life in Picardy," written in sprightly and charming style by Helen Everston Smith. She has written of her sojourn in Le Crotoy, one of the quaintest of little fishing hamlets on the coast of northern France. Its sole claim to historical importance lies in the possession of a ruined stronghold known as the "house of Jeanne d' Arc," where through many weary months the patriotic Maid of Orleans was held a prisoner, though not in strict captivity, leaving it only when taken to Rouen where she suffered a cruel and unjust death at the stake. The magazine, in its entirety, makes a remarkably good showing, ranking high among its numerous competitors.

Can Catarrh Be Cured!

Can the Deaf be Made to Hear

Can the Blind be Made to See

These are Three Leading Questions that just now agitate the public mind and inspire the afflicted with hope. In answer to the first question

= Dr. H. A. McChesney, =

Says Emphatically Yes, the same as any other disease that is caused by impurities in the blood. The doctor treats this aggravating disease scientifically, and rarely ever fails to give permanent satisfaction. In answering the second question,

Can the Deaf Be Made to Hear ?

He says just as Emphatically, Yes, where the deafness results from catarrhal trouble, or any other, that does not destroy the drum of the ear. The docter claims that 90 per cent. of all the deaf people are curable, and he fully substantiates this claim by the people that he is now treating at his office in the Wilcox Block. As to the third question

Can the Blind Be Made to See ?

He says Yes, in many cases. He claims that Cataract, Cross-Eyes and many other diseases of the Eye are readily cured, and that thousands of people who wear glasses could throw them away after proper treatment.

Doctor McChesney's office is thronged with patients every day, and he is meeting with wonderful success. He does not attempt impossibilities, but he does treat special diseases in his line scientifically, and his patients give him the strongest endorsement. The doctor is permanently located in Janesville, and the people are not slow to recognize his skill.

PROFIT IN GUINEA PIGS.

Reward of Three Years' Labor in Producing a Caudated Variety.

"I spent last fall in the country," said the young man with the fall style derby, "and I succeeded in making a large and juicy fool of myself almost every day while I was there. I stayed with an uncle of mine who has a farm sixteen or seventeen miles from nowhere, and the Reubens got the laugh on me so many times that I can't remember the number.

"The queerest experience that I had, though, was at one of their country fairs. They held the fair early last year, for some reason or other, and I was on hand to take it in. I went out to the grounds with a party of women who were visiting in the neighborhood, and, undismayed by the failure of my former efforts to string the rustics, I started out to have some fun with them as soon as we struck the grounds. We walked around for a couple of hours, and I was poking all manner of fun at the people we met. Finally we came to the shed where the poultry was on exhibition, and as we went along looking at the variously bred chickens, I got particularly funny. At the end of one of the rows of coops was a box with five or six guinea pigs in it. There were quite a number of countrymen standing around looking at the queer little animals.

"We walked over and looked at the pigs. Then I said loudly: 'Do you know that if you pick up a guinea pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?' The countrymen stared. 'Fact,' I continued. 'Pick one of them up by the tail and its eyes will drop right out. Most queerly constructed anatomically of any animal known to naturalists. If these pigs were mine I would soon show you.'

"A big, strapping fellow who stood beside the box said: 'Stranger, I don't believe you'. I insisted that I was right, but he stood and doggedly shook his head, and the rest of the countrymen sided with him. Now, a guinea pig has no tail, and there is where the joke comes in. I argued for some little time, and then made a grand bluff. I pulled out a little roll of bills and offered to bet the Reuben $25 that just that thing would happen. Imagine my surprise when the Reuben hauled a greasy old pocketbook out of his jeans and covered the money. I was sure I had him, for the bet was a catch one anyhow, and as the young women who were with me were egging me on, I couldn't think of flunking.

"'Understand,' I said, 'I claim that if you pick up that guinea pig by its tail its eyes will drop out.'

"'I understand,' said the countryman, as he opened a little door in the side of the box and pulled out a guinea pig. 'Now, pick this one up and let's see its eyes drop out.'

"Then I began to laugh. 'Ha, my friends,' I said, 'I have played a little trick on you, that's all. As a guinea pig has no tail you can't pick one up by it. If you could I do not doubt that its eyes would drop out.'

"I reached out for my half of the bet, when the big countryman said: 'Hol' on there, mister. You jes look and see if this here guinea pig ain't got a tail.' I examined it, and I may be switched if it didn't have a tail an inch long. The countryman picked it up by the little caudal appendage, and, of course, its eyes didn't drop out. Then he reached over, grabbed the wad of money and put it in his pocket, remarking the while: 'I did not think when I developed that breed of guineas that they would ever make that much for me.'

"I'll be blamed if he hadn't been working three years to produce guinea pigs with tails! He had succeeded, and I was chump enough to go against the only cage of that kind of animals in the world with my chestnut about their eyes dropping out."

What Will Do It?

Medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will reach the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh is proof positive that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. Our druggists keep it.

The Complexion of a Chinese

Is not yellower than that of an unfortunate individual whose liver complaint has assumed the chronic form. The eyeballs of the sufferer assume a saffron hue, there is dull pain in the region of the organ affected, the tongue is coated, b eath sour, sick headaches usually but not always occur, and there is sometimes dizziness on arising from a sitting posture. Constipation and dyspepsia are also attendants of this very common ailment, alw ys in its aggravated form, liable to breed abscesses of the liver, which are very dangerous. Hostetter s Stomach Bitters wholly eradicates it,as well as the troubles complicated with it and which it originates. In chills and fever, a complaint which always yields to the Bitters, the liver is seriously involved. This fine alternate tonic removes costiveness and indigestion, rheumatic, nervous and kidney trouble and debility.

THE NATION'S PERIL.

Wage earners will see the truth of this review of the political situation made by the National Republican club:

"The country is suffering from a panic of labor. The democratic panic of 1893 has developed into the labor panic of 1894. The trouble is widespread, and not confined to particular occupations or sections. Striking first at the four or five million wage-earners engaged in manufacturing, it passed rapidly to the labor employed in transportation and business, thence to the professional and to those performing personal services, and has now, by reduced prices and stagnant trade, invaded the agricultural regions, the farm and dairy, and is in a fair way to paralyze the production and business, and seriously to reduce the earning powers of all the people.

"The mutual dependence of occupations makes it extremely difficult to estimate the extent of this panic, though the sorrowful and charity-fed army of three million unemployed and their families bring the real condition of labor home at this season of the year to every fireside in the land.

"A ten per cent. reduction of earning power means an annual loss to the nation of one thousand million dollars; a twenty per cent. reduction, of two thousand million. Here we make no allowance for loss resulting from shrinkage of values. The mills, the factories, the workshops, the machinery will be here to be sure, but half of their value will, with half the wages of those employed, be gone, if the Wilson bill shall become a law.

"Astounding as it may appear, the sum total of the nation's loss, in shrinkage of value, reduction of wages, loss of employment and in a fourfold increase of liabilities in bankruptcy, has already exceeded the assessed valuation of all the property of the thirteen southern states, as shown by the census of 1890 ($3,809,000,000.)

"The loss in earnings alone is already equal to the wiping out of every dollar on deposit in the savings banks of the country at the close of the last republican administration, when the nation had reached the noonday sun of its prosperity.

"The impending ruin which the people of the United States are facing at this moment is not a bankers' panic, it is not a manufacturers' panic, it is not a railroad panic, it is not a farmers' panic, but a labor panic which runs through every vein and every artery of our body-politic, vitiating and paralyzing the life currents of a prosperous nation and sapping the stamina of the people.

"For this reason the present situation is critical, far reaching and demands immediate remedy. To this end it is the duty of every American citizen who loves the republic and sympathizes with his fellow men, at once to telegraph, write and petition his representative in congress, and the senators of his state, to use all honorable means to defeat this measure, which lies at the bottom of the panic of labor.

"The Wilson bill must be smashed. Should it be passed, months, perhaps years, of disaster must follow. If the republican policy of protection is continued, we assert that the land will resound once more with industry, hope will return, work will become abundant, wages will stiffen, cheerfulness will come back to the home and fireside, confidence will be restored, business will get on its feet again, drooping industries will revive, and the gloom occasioned by democratic folly and treachery will once more give way to the brightness of republican prosperity."

A NEW APPLICATION OF THE POPULAR PHRASE.

It Concerns Us All More Deeply Now Than Ever Before--A Far Greater and Nobler Use of the Term than the Original One.

How frequently we make use of popular quotations, we do so because they describe so accurately our feelings. The heading of this article, meaning, I came, saw and conquered, was first employed by Julius Caesar to describe one of his victories, but even this great man little realized the magnitude of what might be involved in his famous expression. Recent events have called forth the use of it in a grander and more sublime meaning than ever before.

Mrs. I. E. Ditmar, who resides at 806 Parker Street Boston Highlands, Mass., says:

"I had been suffering for four or five years with dyspepsia, indigestion, and constipation experiencing constant and severe pain in the stomach. For years I ate scarcely anything, and could take no food without suffering the greatest misery. I had also been afflicted for five or six years with chills and fever

"I was induced to try Dr, Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now, after taking four bottles of this wonderful medicine I am entirely cured of all these complaints. My appetite has returned, I can eat without distress and the chills and fever have entirely left me. I consider it a wonderful cure and I cannot speak highly enough in favor of this medicine."

HON. L. P. STRICKLAND.

"I have taken Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy since last spring and I feel like a new man. It has cured me of chills, hot flashes, bloating after eating, cold feet and shortness of breath. I have also had a fistula for over twenty years, and it is almost gone now. I cannot express how thankful I am that I used this wonderful remedy."

This wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is purely vegetable and harmless, and has come to us through the skill and labor of a great physician. It has met disease, and it is conquering it all over the country, to an extent never before known. It is acknowledged to be the greatest of all medicines in overcoming diseases of the blood and nerves, and all complaints arising from poor blood or weakened and diseased nerves. If you are suffering from any of these diseases, such as nervous debility, poor blood, weak nerves, dyspepia, liver or kidney complaints, take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the great conqueror of disease, and your system will be freed from all impurities and complaints. The doctor can be consulted at his office 35 W. 14th Street, New York, free personally or by letter.

A Contractor's Advice.

Dullman's German Medicine Co.: Gentlemen I take great pleasure in testifying in behalf of Dullman's German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure. I can safely say that I never took such medicine as that to cleanse the stomach and kidneys. I was suffering for years with biliousness, indigestion and loss of appetite and sleep. One bottle of it did me more good than six months' other treatment, and I feel it my duty to testify in its behalf, so others may try and get cured.

Yours truly, Mrs. McDonald, Milan, Mich. For sale by Palmer & Stevens.

Bucuamanquina is the name of a new species of fibrous material recently discovered in the United States of Colombia. It has many of the remarkable properties of asbestos, and is perfectly transparent as well as incombustible. It can be reduced to pulp and molded into light fire and waterproof boards and shingles for houses. The discoverer believes that it is adapted to paper-making, and that it will also be used in the manufacture of carpets and clothing.

Blood Poisoning

"Twelve years ago my wife was picking raspberries when she scratched herself on a briar, the wound from which soon developed into a running sore, between her knee and ankle. We tried medical skill on every side, with no effect. About a year ago she read of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it herself, and while taking the first bottle she felt better and continued with it until today she is entirely cured and better than ever. THE STATE'S STORY IS NOT WEAKENED.

SO SAYS ATTORNEY DUNWIDDIE IN THE OPENING.

Facts Remain Uncontradicted and Unexplained--Rigor Mortis Explodes One Theory, He Says—Ashton's Family Sit With Him Inside the Rail—Mr. Winans Talks.

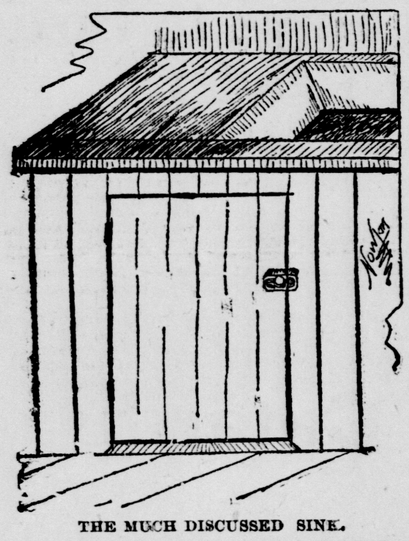

Matthew Ashton's family sat with him inside the rail of the circuit court when the Stone murder case was resumed this morning. Although both sides had rested their case yesterday noon, James Conway was sworn by the defense this morning. He was to testify as to whether James Murwin made the remark in the presence of the witness to "hold on and allow Mrs. Stone to come to his place once more and he could pump it all out of her, as she was on the verge of disclosing who clubbed Stone." The conversation, the defense claimed, was called out by Marshal Spangler's telling Murwin that a detective was coming to work on the case. The court ruled the testimony out, and several other witnesses who were to corroborate Conway were not allowed to testify.

Attorney E. F. Dunwiddie then opened the argument for the state by reading the indictment under which the defendant was arrested. He insisted that the testimony of the state remained in great measure uncontradicted. He referred to the attempt to bribe District Attorney Wheeler as an "attempted crime for which there can be no excuse and for which there is no explanation."

"Then comes the paying by the defendant of money to be held by a third party and paid to a witness if he did not appear at the trial," said the speaker. Such attempts, he insisted struck at the very foundation of law and justice.

Reviewed the Evidence.

The evidence in the case was then reviewed in the order in which it came. He told of Mrs. Stone's devotion to her husband; the harmless peculiarities of Mr. Stone; and the peaceful life that they led up to the time when Mr. Ashton came "boasting that he was going west to live with a rich uncle." Almost his first inquiries were "how much property Mr. Stone had and how much Mrs. Stone would get if Stone died?"

The defendant had also said that he was "to have it all," Mr. Dunwiddie affirmed but there stood in his way one obstacle, Caroline Stone, who saw through his design. She could claim one-third of the estate and get it in spite of all that Ashton could do, and if the will was broken the whole thing would go. Ashton had said that he would give $1,000 to be rid of her, and the spirit that caused him to refer to her as a "d——n old hell cat" indicated his disposition.

Mr. Dunwiddie told how Mr. Stone's mind had been poisoned until he refused to come home from Iowa to attend his wife's funeral but returned at once when Ashton went after him a few days later. The "unjust will," Mr. Dunwiddie said, also indicated that the poisoning was well developed. Daniel Stone never would have made that will without some influence being brought to bear upon him. The man who was most benefitted must have been the man who used the influence.

How Mr. Stone Was Clubbed.

The story of how Mr. Stone was clubbed was told, and it was declared that Ashton could not be located by witnesses on that night, while Mrs. Preston swore that Mrs. Stone was in the house at the time. An outline of how Ashton acted and what he said and did that night followed. The testimony showed that Mrs. Stone could not have committed the assault, but it was laid to her door by some one who could profit thereby. Mr. Dunwiddie told how Ashton at first swore at the coroners inquest that he did not know whether Mr. Stone made a will or not while the testimony brought out at the present trial showed that he had heard Mr. Carpenter read it.

"The detective then comes," said Mr. Dunwiddie, "and you have, uncontradicted, the verdict of his work as to who clubbed Mr. Stone. He said that Ashton did it."

Burt said that he saw Ashton come to the house early that morning, Mr. Dunwiddie continued, by way of introduction to his review of the scenes preliminary to the murder. Ashton had the chance and before him stood the woman who was between him and the estate.

"Only the allseeing eyes of God saw what happened there" continued the attorney. "Something was said, Ashton jumped on her, throttled her, threw her down on the floor, crushed her chest in and threw her into the cistern!"

"He Explained Too Soon."

Mrs. Preston's story of how she found things when she got up and discovered that Mrs. Stone was gone, was reviewed as was also that of Adelbert Murwin, which, Mr. Dunwiddie affirmed, was both conclusive and uncontradicted. Murwin said that when he asked Ashton if they had found Mrs. Stone, the answer came in the form of an explanation from Ashton of what he had been doing, "explaining and denying before he had been charged with anything." The testimony all went to show, he continued in telling of the removal of the body from the cistern, that the body did not catch in the cistern opening, but the big knot in the rope was what caught; it lodging under the threshold. The fact that the doctor found rigor mortis or the death stiffness in the body well developed, shattered the theory that the injuries were made in getting the body out of the cistern, as the force used would break the rigor mortis, and after once broken it would not return. Mr. Dunwiddie was still talking when the noon recess was taken, and devoted nearly an hour of the afternoon session to finish his argument. Hon. John Winans then opened for the defense.

COUNTY CLERK MCINTYRE says there were no robins singing in Forest Park this morning. His thermometer showed thirty-two degrees below zero at 5:30 o'clock.

"How can you sell all these goods so cheap, did you steal 'em?" was a remark heard in Lowell's store this morning. "No we didn't steal them, but we have reduced bargain hunting to a science. That accounts for it. See?"

WILL J. MCCONNELL is conducting a series of enthusiastic temperance meetings in Beloit. There and in Clinton where he worked some four weeks ago, the Temple of Honor has developed great strength and has reclaimed many confirmed drunkards.

WEISEND has moved from the Boston Clothing Store to the Phoebus block in department formerly occupied by Burns & Boland. His cost sale will continue to Feb. 1 as advertised. During this month the Weisend Clothing Store will not attempt to make any profit you may have it all.

WHEELOCK'S great sale of white granite ware is attracting a great deal of attention. It is the best white granite ware made, and as the sale lasts but four days longer, you had better go there at once. The prices they are naming will never be duplicated. See them in this issue.

A. H. SHELDON & Co's great sale of $30,000 worth of hardware, stoves and tinware, is progressing nicely. Hundreds have taken advantage of it to-day. It is bona fide, and the goods must be sold. Watch these columns for prices named; all goods are being sold at the same prices in proportion.

THE many friends of Rev. Jenk Ll. Jones will be pleased to meet him at All Souls church this evening. Mr. Jones' lecture on "The Cost of a Fool" is said to be one of the best lectures before the public today and well worth hearing. The house should be crowded as it undoubtedly will be.

AIR FULL OF WORDS WITH MANY JOINTS.

COURT ROOM STILL ECHOES MEDICAL TESTIMONY.

Ashton Case Brought a Notable Body of Experts to the City—One Young Doctor Who Talks Cheerfully About Hewing Up 2,000 Dead Men.

Janitor Nelson has been sweeping six-jointed words out of the court room ever since the medical experts in the Ashton case departed. The city has never sheltered a gathering so distinguished from a medical point of view, and the court room walls have never reechoed to such mouth-filling phrases.

The medical aspect of the Ashton case has been very important. The condition of Mrs. Stone's body made expert testimony as to the cause of her death necessary. "Was she murdered or did she drown herself?" This was the question confronting judge and jury. Supposing her to have been drowned, could the clavicle have been dislocated, the ribs fractured and tissues torn after death? There were discolorations on the body where the blood had settled as it does around a "black eye." Were these discolorations produced before death or after? Only an expert could determine and even experts seemed to disagree. Witnesses for the state thought the blood would not be forced out after death into torn tissues, as it was found in Mrs. Stone's case. Witnesses for the defense said the presure of the rope around the chest might easily have replaced the action of the heart and pumped blood out violently.

Thirteen physicians were called to testify in the case. They were Drs. Palmer, Whiting, Woods, Mills, Sutherland, Barrows, McManus and Lord, of this county; Phillip Fox, of Madison; Walter Kempster and William Fox, of Milwaukee; and H. B. Faville and Ludwig Hecktoen of Chicago.

Has Dissected 2000 Dead Men.

"How many post-mortem examinations have you conducted?" Dr. Hecktoen was asked as he took the stand.

"Something over two thousand," answered the slender young man nonchalantly.

Somebody of statistical turn figured a minute. He found that if those two thousand cadavers were used for fence posts and placed at the ordinary intervals they would make a fence over three miles long.

"Cheerful sort of a lane to pass through on a dark night," he whispered. The thought didn't seem to worry Dr. Hecktoen in the least.

The man of two thousand post-mortems is just thirty years of age. He graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the same class as Dr. Joe Whiting of this city, and was valedictorian of the class. For eighteen months he was interne in Cook county hospital. He has since been pathologist for the hospital and physician for the Cook county coroner's office. His connection with the coroner's office grew out of his reputation as a post-mortem expert and microscopist. His theory of a post-mortem examination is that it should not only determine the cause of death, but that it should exclude the chance that death came from any other cause. He begins at the head and covers every inch of the body from the brain to the soles of the feet. When he is through he can testify positively how death was caused and can swear with equal decision that no one of half a dozen other causes played a part. Because of his accuracy and skill he is summoned as a witness in most of the important Chicago murder cases, and in the Painter case passed triumphantly through one of the severest cross-examinations that could be given.

Kempster an Insanity Expert.

Dr. Walter Kempster, the other of the state's experts from out of town, has given especial attention to insanity cases. He has been in practice since 1851 and during the war was in charge of several hospitals and field hospitals. For thirteen years he was superintendent of the Northern Wisconsin Hospital for the Insane, at Oshkosh, and did a great deal of laboratory work, devoting much attention to the developement of mind in lower animals. He was sent abroad by the government to report on the cholera outbreak in Hamburg and the immigration of Russian Jews to America and has just returned from this mission. His trip to Wales a few years ago is still remembered. He went to testify in behalf of the nephew of Millionaire Corcoran of Washington, on trial for the murder of his wife.

Dr. Kempster had been Corcoran's family physician and had told relatives that the young man should be placed under restraint. His testimony as insanity expert was opposed by that of Sir Andrew Clark. A special councillor was sent out by the queen to represent the crown in the prosecution, but Corcoran was freed.

When testifying in the Ashton case Dr. Kempster said he had conducted between eight and nine hundred post mortems. He retired from practice a year or two ago, and went east to develop a Delaware gold mine, but he has now returned to Milwaukee, and reentered the ranks of his profession.

Experts Get From $50 to $300 a Day.

The defense rested their medical case upon the testimony of Dr. H. B. Faville, Dr. William Fox and Dr. Phillip Fox. Dr. Faville is lecturer on medical juris prudence before the Chicago Medical and Surgical Clinic. He is professor of the same subject in the Chicago Medical College and his close acquaintance with the details of forensic medicine made his connection with the Stone case especially important. He was Attorney E. M. Hyzer's constant advisor during the medical cross-examination. As everybody in court remarked, however, Mr. Hyzer needed very little prompting. His cross-examinations were entirely without notes and were marvels of effectiveness.

Dr. William Fox, the second expert witness sworn for the defense, is in practice in Milwaukee. He ranks as the most prominent general practitioner in the city, Dr. Marks standing equally high in respect to surgery. Dr. Philip Fox was for years a Janesville man, and is a physician and surgeon of marked ability. He is the elder of the Fox brothers although the gray hair and beard of the Milwaukee physician makes most people guess wrong.

"How much do the experts in the Stone case receive?" has been a common question since the trial began.

Definite statement is impossible. The average is said to be about $50 a day. Dr. Senn of Chicago, the famous surgeon, who was to have appered in behalf of the defense, is said to estimate his services at $300 a day. He is in Florida this winter or he doubtless would have been put on the stand.

A. M. THOMSON WEDS IN CHICAGO

Former Owner of the Daily Gazette Makes Matrimonial Vows.

The marriage of Hon. A. M. Thomson and Miss Annie Greenman in Chicago last evening was a surprise to the friends of the groom in Janesville. Mr. Thomson has spent the greater portion of his life in newspaper work in Wisconsin. For many years was one of the owners and the editor of The Gazette. During his residence in Janesville he was twice elected to the assembly in 1868 and 1869, and was made speaker at each session.

In October, 1870, Mr. Thomson and his partners, having sold The Gazette, bought the Milwaukee Sentinel, and Mr. Thomson became its editor-in-chief, retaining that position until January, 1874, when he was frozen out of the concern by a combination of the opposing stockholders.

Since that time Mr. Thomson has done editorial work for a number of papers in Milwaukee and Chicago, a part of the time being part owner and editor-in-chief of the Milwaukee News. His service in Chicago was on both the Tribune and the Journal.

Mr. Thomson lost his first wife about a year and a half ago and has since been living in Chicago. His wedding last evening was private, only a few of the family being present. The newly married couple will spend the winter in California.

COLDEST DAY OF THE WINTER.

Twenty-Seven Degrees Below Reported by Men with Good Thermometers.

People who ventured out to-day wrapped their mufflers close about their ears. The temperature was the lowest of the winter. Thermometers vary according to location. Along the river the register this morning was uniformly at twenty degrees below zero, while on the higher ground away from the influence of the running water, twenty-five and twenty-seven degrees below zero is reported.

TETEPHONES SOON WILL BE CHEAP

Air Likely to be Full of Wires After January 30.

After the 30th inst. telephones can be bought outright and for a few dollars each and the wires and apparatus can be had for a little more. Whoever wants a telephone between his house and place of business, can get the two phones and wire and have the whole put up for thirty to forty dollars. There is a concern in Chicago with a patent switch board which will doubtless soon be in general use and the extortion to which the public has been subjected for a good many years will soon end.

GAZETTE PRAISED BY AN EXPERT

H. D. Morgan of the Evansville Enterprise Commends Janesville's Best Paper.

H. D. Morgan, a newspaper man of years' experience, is the new editor of the Evansville Tribune and that he knows a good thing when he sees it is showed by the following from his paper. "Ever since the Daily Gazette of Janesville, has adopted its new style of "make up" the improvement is much for the better and it now possesses a more metropolitan appearance. It reaches this place early in the morning and its news are in advance of any Chicago papers and for this reason alone it should be taken by all our business men."

SHE NEARLY FROZE WHILE SICK IN BED.

ELVIRA LORD COX FOUND IN PITIFUL CONDITION.

Neighbor Supplied Her With Fire Wood as Long as He Could, And County Officers Will Now Send Her to the Johnstown Poor Farm.

Mrs. Alvira Lord Cox is destitute, sick and suffering at her home near the Jackson street bridge. It was reported last evening that she had frozen her feet and hands, but this is denied by Dr. Modrack. Mrs. Cox left the poor house some time ago, saying that she would care for herself but this she appears unable to do. Poormaster Kenyon and Chief of Police Acheson are making arrangements to send her back to the county house.

"Mrs. Cox has been in her house sick for several days," said Mr. Humphrey, her nearest neighbor. "I have given her about half of my own supply of firewood and I can't give her any more. She came to my house last night and we took her in. I thought her hands and feet were both frozen."

NEW SHOE MACHINE IS RAPID.

F. M. Marzluff & Co. Buy a Cutter That Is of Great Capacity.

Janesville is destined to be the shoe-making center of the west. Bower City factories stand high and are constantly being improved. F. M. Marzluff & Co. have just added a Lower rounder, a machine that introduces the principles of the Blanchard lathe into shoe making. It rounds from one to six pairs of outsoles, or one to sixteen pairs of insoles at a time, and has a capacity on general work of 5,000 pairs a day; one man and one machine doing the work of ten men and ten machines of any other style. The soles are held between clamps that revolve in such a way as to press the edges of the leather against a rotary cutter. This principle is new and Mr. Marzluff feels happy in the thought that he is the first western manufacturer to take advantage of the improvement.

TRAMPS ARE ON THE MOVE.

Chief Acheson Says Dane County Furnishes Most of Them.

The cold weather has had an effect on the tramps, quite a number having appeared within a day or two.

"The Dane county tramps bother us most," said Chief Acheson this morning. "Dane county appears to be overrun with this class and the Madison police gather them in, when they are sent down here on jail sentences. When their term expires they are turned out and then we have to work to get them out of town. Generally they head for Dane county, expecting better treatment."

SYNOPSIS OF "FOES IN AMBUSH."

CHAPTER I.

Major Plummer, an army paymaster, is crossing the plains with a safe of greenbacks for the garrison troops in Arizona. His cavalry escort is led by a veteran sergeant named Feeny. The party halts at Mereno's ranch, near Gila river. A stranger giving his name as "Ned Harvey" calls at that ranche and states that himself and a small party are escorting his two sisters across the plains. Their father, a wealthy citizen of Tucson, A. T., was to have met them near Moreno's but has failed to do so, and his children fear that he has fallen in with murderous Apaches. Half a dozen troopers, led by Corporal Donovan, are sent with the stranger as protection for his sisters. Later two of the troopers return grossly intoxicated and bringing a note signed "Ned Harvey," to the effect that Indians have burned the Harvey camp and carried off the girls. Feeny scents a ruse to rob the paymaster. Suddenly a beacon fire is seen at an army signal station in the crest of a distant range, a warning never displayed except the Apaches are on the warpath.

CHAPTER II.

Late that night a scouting party of United States cavalrymen, under Lieutenant Drummond, is crossing the plains from another direction toward Moreno's. One of the troop is a mysterious recruit, a former stage driver, named Bland. The riders stumble upon the body of a trooper, which proves to be Corporal Donovan. They descry the tell tale beacon at the signal station, and shortly after a second fire lights up the sky around Moreno's.

CHAPTER III.

Just after dark on the evening the beacon was lit at the signal station a draft wagon and a Concord piloted by the real Ned Harvey and conveying his sisters Ruth and Fanny, pass by the station on the way to Moreno's. The signal officer in charge, Sergeant Wing, has met the girls in Yuma, and after greeting them and whispering in young Harvey's ears the rumors about Indian raids starts to climb the signal hill. He is suddenly assaulted, lassoed and dragged to a tent, bound and gagged. At the same time the signal pile of dry fuel bursts into flames. At the sight of the signal beacon Major Plummer sends a second party of soldiers out to rescue the Harvey girls, leaving only Sergeant Feeny, the paymaster and his clerk and the stupified troopers to guard the safe.

CHAPTER IV.

Ranchman Moreno is secretly leagued with the "greaser" bandit gang of one Morales. Ned Harvey and his sisters reach Moreno's. Next two strangers ride up and ask for shelter. Feeney rebuffs them, and the fight opens. Major Plummer's party and the Harveys are barricaded in the ranch.

CHAPTER V.

Moreno openly joins the outlaws. They fire the ranch buildings. Feeney and Ned Harvey are ambushed.

CHAPTER VI.

The bandits led by a man in cavalry uniform plunder the ranch, carrying off the Harvey girls and the safe. Drummond's party arrives. Feeny and Harvey are found. Private Bland is missing from the ranks. Sergeant Wing and party arrive. Drummond starts in hot pursuit.

CHAPTER VII. Tells the story of the pursuit and the romance springing from it. Drummond has met the Harvey girls and is the hero of Ruth's fancy.

CHAPTER VIII. The trail leads to Morales' mountain cave.

CHAP. IX The troopers overtake the outlaws' train and cut out the Concord wagon containing the girls. Drummond is hurt, and Ruth turns nurse.

CHAP. X. Wing leads a party to recover the safe, is ambushed and wounded. Private Bland is Wing's uncle and a notorious outlaw.

CHAP. XI. Harveys, father and son, are rescued.

CHAPTER XII.

It is a sultry day, early in July, and the sun is going westward through a fleet of white, wind driven clouds that send a host of deep shadows sweeping and chasing over the wide prairie. Northward the view is limited by a low range of bluffs, destitute of tree or foliage, but covered thickly with the summer growth of bunch grass. Southward, three miles away at least, though it seems much less, a similar range, pierced here and there with deep ravines, frames the picture on that side. Midway between the two ridges and fringed with clumps of cottonwood and willow, a languid stream flows silently eastward and is lost with the valley in the dim distance. Out to the west in long, gradual curve the southward range veers around and spans the horizon. Midway across this monotone of landscape, cutting the stream at right angles, a hard prairie road comes twisting and turning out of one of the southern ravines, and after a long, gradual dip to the ford among the cottonwoods emerges from their leafy shade and goes winding away until lost among the "breaks" to the north. It is one of the routes to the Black Hills of Dakota—the wagon road from the Union Pacific at Sidney by way of old Fort Robinson, Neb., where a big garrison of some 14 companies of cavalry and infantry keep watch and ward over the Sioux nation, which, one year previous, was in the midst of the maddest, most successful war it ever waged against the white man. That was the centennial year—1876. This is another eventful year for the cavalry—1877; for before the close of the summer even the troops so far to the southeast are destined to be summoned to the chase and capture of wary old Chief Joseph—the greatest Indian general ever reared upon the Pacific slope—and even now, on this July day, here are cavalrymen at their accustomed task, and though it is five years since we saw them under the heat and glare of the Arizona sun there are familiar faces among these that greet us.

All along under the cottonwoods below the crossing the bivouac extends. Long before sunrise these hardy fellows were in saddle, and in long column have come marching down from the north—four strong troops—a typical battalion of regular cavalry as they looked and rode in those stirring days that brought about the subjugation of the Sioux. Out on the prairie the four herds of the four different troops are quietly grazing, each herd watched by its trio of alert, though often apparently dozing, guards. One troop is made up entirely of black horses, another of sorrels—two are of bays. Another herd is grazing close to the stream—the mules of the wagon train—and the white tops of these cumbrous vehicles are dotting the left bank of the winding water for 200 or 300 yards. Cook fires are smoldering in little pits dug in the yielding soil, but the cooking is over for the present. The men have had their substantial dinner and are now smoking or sleeping or chatting in groups in the shade—all but a squad of a dozen, commanded by a grizzled veteran on whose worn blouse the chevrons of a first sergeant are stitched. Booted and spurred, with carbines slung and saddles packed, these sun tanned fellows are standing or sitting at ease, holding the reins of their sleepy chargers and waiting apparently for the passengers who are to start in the stout built Concord drawn by four sleek, strong looking mules, now standing in the shade near the canvas homestead of the commanding officer.

Presently two soldiers following a young man in civilian dress come forward lugging a little green painted iron safe, and this, with a swing and a thud, they deposit in the wagon.

"You've seen that before, sergeant," laughs the civilian.

"I have, begad, an when it had a heap more green inside an less outside than it has now. Faith, I never expected to see it again, nor the paymaster either. We were both bored through an through. 'Twas our good habits that saved us. Sure your predecessor was a game fighter, Mr. Barnes, if he was a tenderfoot."

"Yes, the major often tells me he wishes he had him back, and me in the place he has instead of the one he had," answers the clerk whimsically. "Does he know you're to command the escort in? You got him into such a scrape then that he's never tired of telling of it."

"Then he may feel gratified at the honor I am doing him now. Sure it's beneath the dignity of a first sergeant to command a squad like this except on an extraordinary occasion, an it's to take the taste of the last time out of his mouth I volunteered to escort the major now. 'Twas a strong taste to last five years, though my reminder will go with me many a year longer. Here they come now."

As the sergeant speaks a little group of officers issues from the battalion commander's tent. Foremost among them, in loose flapping raiment and broad brimmed hat and green goggles, is the rotund and portly shape of Major Plummer, the paymaster.

"Well, old man," says the cavalry leader, "you can hardly get into a scrape 'twixt here and Sidney. We've seen you through all right so far; now we'll go on about our scouting. Your old friend Feeny asked permission to see you safely to the railway."

"What, Feeny, and a first sergeant too? I'm honored indeed! Well, sergeant," he adds, catching sight of the grizzled red face under the old scouting hat, "I'll promise to let you run the machine this time and not interfere, no matter what stories come to us of beauty in distress. All ready?"

"All ready, sir, if the major is."

"He wasn't that civil to me in Arizona," laughs the paymaster as he turns to shake hands with the officers about him.

"You see you were new to the business then," explains a tall captain. "Feeny considers you a war veteran now, after your experience at Moreno's. We all had to serve our apprenticeship as suckling lieutenants before he would show us anything but a semblance of respect. Goodby, major; good luck to you."

"Goodby all. Goodby, Drummond. Goodby, Wing. Here! I must shake hands with you two again." And shake he does; then is slowly "boosted" into his wagon, where, as the whip cracks and the mules plunge at their collars and tilt him backward, the major's jolly red face beams on all around, and he waves his broad brimmed hat in exuberant cordiality as they rattle away.

The group of officers presently disperse, two tall lieutenants strolling off together and throwing themselves under the spreading branches of a big cottonwood. One of them, darker and somewhat heavier built now, but muscular, active, powerful, is Drummond; the other, a younger man by a brace of years, tall, blue eyed, blond bearded, wearing on his scouting blouse the straps of a second lieutenant, is our old friend Wing, and Wing does not hesitate in presence of his senior officer—such is the bond of friendship between them—to draw from his breast pocket a letter just received that day when the courier met them at the crossing of the Dry Fork, and to lose himself in its contents.

"All well with the madam and the kid?" queries Drummond, after the manner of the frontier, when at last Wing folds and replaces his letter, a happy light in his brave blue eyes.

"All well. Paquita says that Harvey has captured the entire household, and that Grandpa Harvey is his abject slave. There isn't anything in Chicago too good for that 2-year-old. They've had them photoed together—the kid on his grandfather's shoulder."

"Aren't you afraid his Arizona uncle will be jealous for his own boy's sake?" laughs Drummond.

"I don't believe Ned would begrudge Fanny anything the old man might feel for her or for hers. He is generosity itself toward his sisters, and surely I could never have found a warmer friend—out of the army. You know how he stood by me."

"I know, and it was most gratifying—not but that I feel sure you would have won without his aid. The old man simply couldn't quite be reconciled to her marrying in the army and living in Arizona."

"A strange land for a honeymoon certainly—yet where and when was there a happier? Do you remember how the Apaches jumped the Verde buckboard the very week after we were married?"

"And you spent half of the honeymoon scouting the Tonto basin? I should say so! What with a courtship in a robbers' cave, a marriage in a cavalry camp and a wedding tour in saddle, you had a unique experience, Wing, but—you deserved her." And Drummond turns and grips his comrade's hand.

Wing is silent a moment. His eyes are wistfully searching the elder's half averted face.

"Jim, you told me awhile ago of your sister's approaching marriage. Are you not going on?"

"Yes. It will be early in October. She's blissfully happy, is Puss, and he's a very substantial, solid sort of a fellow. I'm well content, at last, that her future is assured."

"And you are a free agent practically. Isn't it time we heard of your own happiness—your own vine and fig tree, old man?"

"Time's gone by, I reckon," laughs Drummond, yet not merrily. "I've had too much to think of—too much responsibility—and probably have lost my chance."

Wing looks as though he wanted mightily to say something, but conquers his impulse.

"October is a long way off," he finally remarks, "and I thought you might find earlier opportunity of going east. Now that Ned has entire charge of the business in Arizona the old gentleman takes life easier. The winter in Cuba did him a lot of good, and Fan writes that he seems so happy now, having his two girls and his little grandson under the same roof with his sister and her children. What a reunion after all these years!"

"Where are they living in Chicago?"

"You would know better than I, for—think of it!—I have never been east of the Missouri since my babyhood," answers Wing. "Fan writes that her aunt has a lovely house on what they call the North Side—near the great waterworks at the lake front."

"I know the neighborhood well," says Drummond. "Chicago is as familiar to me as San Francisco was to you. Only—I have no roof to call my own anywhere, and as soon as Puss is married shall not have a relative or friend on earth who is not much more deeply interested in somebody else." And the senior lieutenant is lying on his back now, blinking up at the rapidly scudding clouds. Presently he pulls the broad brim of his campaign hat down over his eyes. "What do you hear from your mother, Wing?"

"Nothing new. Bless the dear old lady! You should have seen her happiness in Harvey. She could hardly bear to let the little fellow out of her arms, and how she cried and clung to him when we parted at the Oakland wharf! Poor little mother! She has never given up the hope of seeing that scapegrace of an uncle of mine again."

"Has she ever heard how he tried to murder his nephew?" queries Drummond grimly.

"Never. Nor have we the faintest trace of him since the break up of the old Morales gang at Fronteras. They went all to pieces after their encounter with you and C troop. What a chain of disasters! Lost their leaders and three of their best men, lost their rendezvous at Moreno's, lost horses and mules—for what our men didn't get the Apaches did—and won absolutely nothing except the 24 hour possession of a safe they hadn't time to open. Whereas I got my commission and my wife; Feeny, honorable wounds and mention and the chevrons of a first sergeant; Costigan got his sergeant's stripes and the medal of honor, Murphy his sergeantcy, Walsh and Latham medals and corporalships, and the only fellow who didn't get a blessed thing but scars was the commanding lieutenant—your worthy self—thanks to wiseacres at Washington who say Indian fighting isn't war."

"Didn't I get a letter of thanks from the department commander?" grins Drummond. "What else could I expect?"

"What else?" is Wing's impulsive rejoinder. Then, as though mindful of some admonition, quieting at once and speaking in tone less suggestive, "Well, in your case I suppose you can be content with nothing, but bless me if I could." Then, suddenly rising and respectfully touching his weather beaten hat, he salutes a stoutly built, soldierly looking man in rough scouting dress, whose only badge of rank is the tarnished shoulder strap with the silver leaf on the shabbiest old fatigue coat to be found in the battalion, most of whose members, however, wear no coat at all.

"Hullo, Wing—didn't mean to disturb your siesta—Drummond here?" says the commander in his offhand way, and at sound of the well known voice Drummond, too, is on his feet in a twinkling.

"Seen the papers that came in today?" queries the colonel, obliterating from his sentences all verbal superfluities.

"Not yet, sir; any news?"

"H—l to pay in Chicago, so far as heard from. The railway strike has taken firm hold there. Police and militia both seem unable to do anything against the mob, and the authorities are stampeded. Your home, isn't it?"

"It was once, sir, but that was many a long year ago."

"W-e-ell," says the colonel reflectively, stroking his grizzled beard, "it's my belief there is worse to come. It isn't the striking railway hands that will do the mischief, but every time there's a strike all the thieves and thugs and blackguards in the community turn out. That's what happened in Pittsburg—that's what's the matter in Chicago. It looks to me as though the plea for regular troops would have to be granted."

"Think we can get there, sir?" asks Wing eagerly.

"Can't say. We're supposed to have our hands full covering this section of Nebraska, though I haven't heard of a hostile Sioux this summer. Besides, they have full regiments of infantry at Omaha and along the lakes. Doesn't Mrs. Wing say anything about the trouble?"

"Her letter is four days old, sir, and only says her father looks upon the situation as one of much gravity, but women rarely see troubles of this kind until they come to their doors."

"Well, this is The Times of two days ago. It reached Sidney at breakfast time this morning, and Hatton brought two or three copies out when he came with the mail. I thought you two might be interested." And with that the colonel goes strolling along down the bank of the stream, pausing here and there to chat with some officers or give some order relative to the grazing of the horses—one of his especial "fads."

And this evening, just as the sun disappears over the low bluff lying to the west and the horses are being picketed for the night, while from a score of cook fires the appetizing savor of antelope steak and the aroma of "soldier coffee" rise upon the air, a little dust cloud sweeps out from the ravine into which disappears the Sidney road and comes floating out across the prairie. Keen eyed troopers quickly note the speed with which it travels toward them. Officers and men, who have just been looking to the security of their steeds, pause now on their way to supper and stand gazing through the gloaming at the coming cloud. In five minutes the cause is apparent—two swift riders, urging their horses to full speed, racing for the ford. Five minutes more and the foremost throws himself from the saddle in the midst of the group at the colonel's tent and hands that officer a telegraphic dispatch, which is received, opened, read with imperturbable gravity and pocketed. To the manifest chagrin of the courier and disappointment of his officers, the colonel simply says:

"W-e-ell, I'm going to supper. You all'd better have yours too."

"Why, blame his old hide!" pants the courier later, "the quartermaster told me never to lose a second, but git that to him before dark. The hull outfit's ordered to Chicago by special train."

And so, finding the secret out, the colonel presently puts aside professional sang froid and condescends to be human again.

"Get a hearty supper all round, gentlemen, then—'boots and saddles' and away for Sidney!"

Two days later. A fierce July sun is pouring down a flood of humid, moisture laden heat upon a densely packed, sweltering mass of turbulent men, many of them flushed with drink, all of them flushed with triumph, for the ill armed, ill disciplined militia of the seventies—a pygmy force as compared with the expert "guardsmen" of today—has been scattered to the winds; the sturdy police have been swept from the streets and driven to the shelter of the stations. Mob law rules supreme. Dense clouds of smoke are rising from sacked and ruined warehouses and from long trains of burning cars. Here and there little groups of striking employees have gathered, holding aloof from the reckless and infuriated mob, appalled at the sight of riot and devastation resulting from their ill advised action. Many of their number, conscious of their responsibility for the scenes of bloodshed and pillage and wanton destruction of property, public and private, would now gladly undo their work and array themselves among the few defenders of the great corporations they have served for years and deserted at the call of leaders whom they never saw and in a cause they never understood, but there can be "no footsteps backward" now. The tide of riot has engulfed the great city of the west, and the majesty of the law is but the laughing stock of the lowest of the masses. Huddled in their precinct stations, the police are bandaging their bruised and broken heads. Rallied at their armories, the more determined of the militia are preparing to defend them and their colors against the anticipated attack of 50 times their force in "toughs"—Chicago's vast accumulation of outlawed, vagabond or criminal men. The city fathers are well nigh hopeless. Merchants and business men gather on 'change with blanched faces and the oft repeated query: "What next? What next?" Every moment brings tidings of fresh dismay. New fires and a crippled and helpless department, for the rioters slash the hose and laugh all efforts to scorn. A gleam of hope shone in at 10 o'clock, and the boardroom rang with cheers at the president's announcement that the regulars were coming—a whole regiment of infantry from Omaha was already more than half way. But the gleam died out at noon when, with white lips, an official read the telegram saying the strikers had "side tracked" the special trains bearing the soldiers, and they could not advance another mile.

And so they had on one road, but there are others, better guarded, better run. The sun is well over to the west again, Chicago is resigning itself to another night of horror, when from the suburbs there comes gliding in to the heart of the city the oddest looking railway train that has been seen for years, a sight at which a host of riotous men break away from the threatening front, dragging with them those "pals" whom drink has either maddened or stupefied; a sight at which skulking blackguards who have picked up paving stones drop them into the gutters and think twice before they lay hand on their revolver butts. No puffing engine hauls the train; the motive power is at the rear. First and foremost is a platform car—open, uncovered, but over its buffer glisten the barrels of the dreaded gatling gun, and around the gun—can these be soldiers? Covered with dust and cinders, hardly a vestige of uniform among them, in the shabbiest of old felt hats, in hunt-

How a Man and a Bear Went Sailing Through Space.

If Ed Mott is a true chronicler, Uncle Jim Hatton, an old time woodsman of Pennsylvania, not only had many unique and thrilling experiences, but had a remarkable faculty for describing his adventures to the circle of gaping admirers who always surrounded him. He and Jabez Shiner were invariable and inseparable comrades in all the hunts he used to tell about, and although it was well known that Jabez Shiner was of the same degree of tangible existence as Sairy Gamp's friend, Mrs. Harris, that fact made no difference to Uncle Jim. Here is one of his favorite stories.

"I hadn't been 'quainted with Jabez long 'fore he says to me one day 'Couldn't me an you slip out an fetch in a bear or two today?'

"'Well,' I says, 'such things has been done.' An so me and him went out.

"It was along late in the fall, but the season had been warm an we knowed that bears hadn't holed up yet. As it had turned blame cold that day, we calc'lated that the chances was that we'd run ag'in a drove o' bear mebbe on their way for winterin places. Consekently, it bein a likely part o' the deestric to suit a congregation o' that kind, we struck into a piece o' timber where there had been a windfall durin the summer. We got onto the down timber, an stopped to look at the good sized hick'ry saplin that'd been hit by the top of a big tree as it was fallin, an which had bent the saplin over to the ground as slick as could be an held it there.

"'If that young hick'ry ever gits loose,' says Jabez, 'I wuldn't want to be standin over it,' he says, 'not unless I wanted to be hoisted over into the next township,' he says.

"'I guess you're right, Jabez,' says I. 'That hick'ry wouldn't think nothin o' sweepin the clouds with a feller if it should spring up sudden an ketch him,' says I.

"As we stood there talkin what should pop out o' the top of a tree that was layin off to the right of us but two fair sized bears—big enough to make a lively tussle if they had a hankerin that way. Well, it happened that they did have a hankerin that way, as we soon found out. I blazed away at one of 'em, an Jabez he blazed away at t'other one, but neither blaze didn't seem to do nothin but put vim into the bears, an the next minute I was waltzin round 'mongst the down tree tops with one bear, while Jabez was sashayin an alamandin left an cuttin pigeon wings with t'other bear fer a pardner. We cavorted an gallavanted an cut an slashed an pounded an choked them bears, but they only seemed to think we was playin with 'em. I begun to git discouraged, an I hollered to Jabez 'twixt tugs an hugs an cuts an twistins:

"'Jabez,' says I, 'this bear's going to down me sure as flint!'

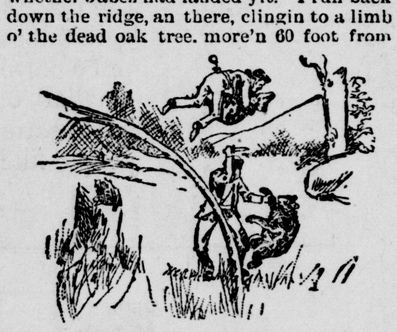

"Jabez hollers back, puffin an blowin an bleedin:

"'There's nothin short of a stroke o' lightnin on this bear's conk that kin save me,' he hollers, 'an it wants to strike quick at that!'

"But we kep' on a-tusselin, an jist as Jabez had hollered goodby to me, kind o' gaspy an weaklike, an I had hollered back the same to Jabez, 'whuz-z-z!' went somethin, an I felt me an my bear, hugged closed together, raise up in the air an go a-sailin up the side o' the ridge like a hurricane. As I started up I turned to give a farewell look at Jabez, an I see him a-scootin straight upward, p'inted toward the top o' a big dead oak tree, with his bear a-follerin close behind him. Then it all come to me what had happened. We had rasseled so long in the top o' that down timber that we had loosened the fastenins o' that bent hick'ry, an it had sprung up an sent us flyin.

"I hung on to my bear like grim death an was wonderin when an where we'd bring up when we went kerplunk up ag'in somethin that stopped us quinker'n a wink. The stop was so suddent that I was knocked loose from my bear an went right on fer more than 40 foot. I picked myself up an ran back to see what we had struck. There laid my bear deader'n a smoked herrin right on top of another bear as big as two o' mine. It didn't take me more'n a second to figure out the situation. As me an my bear was travelin up the ridge, goin 40 miles or so an hour, we had met the big bear comin down. We couldn't turn out fer him, an he didn't have time to turn out fer us, so we come together head on. The collision broke my bear's back an twisted t'other bear's neck out of the socket, an there they was!

"But of course I didn't hover long over the carcasses, fer I was worryin to find out whether Jabez had landed yit. I run back down the ridge, an there, clingin to a limb o' the dead oak tree, more'n 60 foot from the ground, was Jabez, an hangin to him, with its head betwixt Jabez's bow legs, an kickin discons'lit like, was Jabez's bear. Jabez had ketched the limb as he was passin upward an hadn't more'n fastened on to it when along come his bear head first an shot right through betwixt Jabez's knees, where the big bow in his legs was. Jabez didn't let the bear go no furder, but jist drawin them bandy legs o' his'n together, an lockin one foot over t'other one, he shet the bear's wind clean off, an the bear would 'a' ben a heap more comfortable if it had ben in a vise. It was in its last kicks when I got there.

"'Hullo, Jabez!' I hollered. 'How ye feelin?'

"'Chipper!' he yelled back as the bear drawed up its hind legs an twisted an shook itself.

"'Why don't ye let the consarned critter drop?' I hollered, 'spectin to see 'em both come tumblin down ev'ry second.

"'That'd kill him!' yelled Jabez, givin his legs an extra squeeze on the bear's gullet. 'I want him to die 'fore I drop him, an then he won't hurt hisself!'

"'Fore long the bear quit kickin an hung as limp as wet overhauls on a fence rail. Then Jabez unhooked his feet an loosened the grip of his legs on the bear, an down it souzed all in a heap on the ground. Jabez edged over to the body o' the tree, an wrappin his bandy legs round the trunk, jist as if he mowt 'a' ben a quate an somebody had pitched him at the tree an made a ringer with him, he slid to the ground. Me an him had a good many bear fights after that, but none just exac'ly as amazin as that one."

WOULD NOT TALK.

Mr. Childs' Physicians Decline to Discuss an Alarming Rumor.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 25.—A bulletin issued yesterday by the physicians is to the effect that Mr. Childs passed a comfortable night. Neither Dr. Costa nor Dr. Leidy would say anything in reference to the story that Mr. Childs' lower limbs are paralyzed. The fact that a physician is constantly at the bedside of the distinguished patient is proof positive that he is a very sick man.

Cliff Loses His Case.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 25.—The Supreme court decided adversely to J. W. Cliff, the republican secretary of the senate, who at the end of the deadlock two years ago was ousted by the democrats and who brought suit to oust his successor, S. N. Parsons, and to recover his salary.

Truth Is Mighty And Will Prevail.

Facts are stubborn things, and fakes must crumble into dust when scrutinized by the piercing rays of facts. It is a fact that Fakes abound on all sides—Fakes in Fire Sales, Fakes in Bankrupt Sales, Fakes in Receiver's Sales, Fakes in Little Stores, Fakes in Big Stores, all claiming to sell goods at 30, 40 and 50 cents on the dollar. How ridiculous these claims and the presumption in which they are based that the public are fools! Can any one, can even the oldest inhabitant remember of ever buying goods at less than their value at any such sales? The great majority of the purchasing public know a good thing when they see it; hence the wonderful success of our temporary sale.

It is a fact that we will begin to give a genuine bona-fide discount of 20 per cent. from the Lowest Prices Ever Quoted to the consumer on our entire stock of Fall and Winter Goods for a Very Short Time only.
